T1-2024 Schedule 6

Canada Workers Benefit

Protected B when completed

The Canada workers benefit (CWB) is a refundable tax credit intended to supplement the earnings of low-income workers.

This benefit has two parts: a basic amount and a disability supplement. To claim the basic CWB, complete steps 1 and 2. To claim the CWB disability supplement, complete steps 1 and 3. To claim the basic CWB and the CWB disability supplement, complete steps 1, 2, and 3, if applicable. If you or your spouse or common-law partner (if applicable) received an RC210 slip, you must complete step 4 even if you are not claiming the basic CWB or the CWB disability supplement.

Complete this schedule if you met all of the following conditions in 2024:

- You were a resident of Canada throughout the year
- You earned working income (see Part A)
- You were, at the end of the year, 19 years of age or older, or you resided with your spouse or common-law partner or your child

Attach a copy of this schedule to your paper return.

You cannot claim the CWB for 2024 if any of the following conditions apply to you:

- You were enrolled as a full-time student at a designated educational institution for a total of more than 13 weeks in the year, unless you had an eligible dependant at the end of the year
- You were confined to a prison or similar institution for a period of at least 90 days during the year
- You were exempt from income tax in Canada for a period in the year when you were an officer or a servant of another country (such as a diplomat) residing in Canada or you were a family member who resided with such a person or an employee of such a person, at any time in the year

Note: If you are completing a final return for a deceased person who met the conditions above, you can claim the CWB for that person if the date of death was after June 30, 2024.

An eligible spouse is a person who meets all of the following conditions:

- They were your cohabiting spouse or common-law partner on December 31, 2024 (or, if they died after June 30, 2024, they were your cohabiting spouse or common-law partner on the date of death and you were not the cohabiting spouse or common-law partner of another individual on December 31, 2024)

  Note: You are considered to have had a cohabiting spouse or common-law partner, on December 31, 2024, if you had not been living separate and apart because of a breakdown in your marriage or common-law partnership for a period of at least 90 days, that includes December 31, 2024.
- They were a resident of Canada throughout 2024
- They were not enrolled as a full-time student at a designated educational institution for a total of more than 13 weeks in the year unless they had an eligible dependant at the end of the year
- They were not confined to a prison or similar institution for a period of at least 90 days during the year
- They were not exempt from income tax in Canada for a period in the year when they were an officer or a servant of another country (such as a diplomat) residing in Canada or they were a family member who resided with such a person or an employee of such a person, at any time in the year

An eligible dependant is a person who meets all of the following conditions:

- They were your or your spouse's or common-law partner's child

  Note: For the purposes of this claim, a child includes a person under your custody and control who was wholly dependent on you for support. A child you lived with and cared for under a kinship or close relationship program (of the federal government, a provincial or territorial government, or an Indigenous governing body), can still be an eligible dependant, even if you received payments under that program, as long as the payments were not a children's special allowance for that child.
- They were under 19 years of age and lived with you on December 31, 2024 (or, if they died after June 30, 2024, they lived with you on the date of death and would have been under 19 years of age on December 31, 2024)
- They were not eligible for the CWB for 2024

T1-2024

Canada Pension Plan Contributions and Overpayment

Schedule 8

Protected B when completed

The Canada Pension Plan (CPP) was amended to provide for the enhancement of pensions. The enhancements are funded by additional contributions that began in January 2019.

As of January 2024, a second additional CPP contribution is required on pensionable earnings that are more than the year's maximum pensionable earnings but not more than the year's additional maximum pensionable earnings.

CPP contributions consist of a base amount, first additional amount, and second additional amount. The contributions that you are required to make are determined by your total amount of pensionable earnings for the year.

Your employer will have already deducted the contributions from your salary or wages. As a self-employed individual, you will calculate your required contributions (if any), including the base, first and second additional amounts, on this schedule.

For more information about the enhancements, go to canada.ca/cpp-enhancement.

For more information about lines 22200, 22215, 30800, and 31000, go to canada.ca/fed-tax-information.

Find out if this schedule is for you

Complete this schedule to calculate your required 2024 CPP contributions and overpayment if both of the following apply:

- You were a resident of a province or territory other than Quebec on December 31, 2024
- You have no earned income from the province of Quebec

Attach a copy of this schedule to your paper return.

Do not complete this schedule if any of your T4 slips show Quebec Pension Plan (QPP) contributions. Instead, complete Form RC381, Inter-Provincial Calculation for CPP and QPP Contributions and Overpayments.

Parts you have to complete

Part 1 – Complete this part if you are:

- electing to stop contributing to the CPP
- revoking a prior election

If not, leave it blank.

Part 2 – Complete this part to determine the number of months to use for your calculations in Parts 3 to 5 (whichever apply to you).

Part 3 – Complete this part if you are reporting employment income. If not, leave it blank.

Part 4 – Complete this part if you are reporting only self-employment income or other earnings you are electing to pay CPP contributions on. If not, leave it blank.

Part 5 – Complete this part if you are reporting both:

- employment income (complete Part 3 first)
- self-employment income or other earnings that you are electing to pay CPP contributions on

If not, leave it blank.

Part 1 – Election to stop contributing to the CPP or revocation of a prior election

You were considered a CPP working beneficiary and were required to make CPP contributions in 2024 if you met all of the following conditions:

- You were 60 to 70 years of age
- You received a CPP or QPP retirement pension
- You had employment income or self-employment income or both

However, if you were at least 65 years of age, but under 70 years of age, you can elect to stop paying CPP contributions.

Employment income

If you had employment income for 2024 and elected in 2024 to stop paying CPP contributions or revoked in 2024 an election made in a previous year, you should have already completed and sent Form CPT30, Election to Stop Contributing to the Canada Pension Plan or Revocation of a Prior Election, to the Canada Revenue Agency (CRA) and your employer(s).

Self-employment income only

If you had only self-employment income for 2024 and are electing in 2024 to stop paying CPP contributions on your self-employment earnings, enter the month in 2024 that you are choosing to start this election on line 50372 below. The date cannot be earlier than the month you turned 65 years of age and received a CPP or QPP retirement pension. For example, if you turned 65 in June, you can choose any month from June to December. If you choose the month of June, enter "06" on line 50372.

If, in 2024, you are revoking an election made in a previous year on contributions on self-employment earnings, enter the month in 2024 that you are choosing to revoke this election on line 50374 below. Your election remains valid until you revoke it or turn 70 years of age. If you start receiving employment income (other than employment income earned in Quebec) in a future year, you will need to complete Form CPT30 in that year for your election to remain valid.

Employment and self-employment income

If you had both employment income and self-employment income in 2024 and wanted to elect to stop paying CPP contributions in 2024 or revoke, in 2024, an election made in a previous year, you should have completed Form CPT30 in 2024. An election made using Form CPT30 applies to all income from pensionable earnings, including self-employment earnings, as of the first day of the month after the date you gave this form to your employer.

If you completed and sent Form CPT30 when you became employed in 2024, but your intent was to elect in 2024 to stop paying CPP contributions or revoke an election made in a previous year on your self-employment income before you became employed, enter the month you want to stop paying CPP contributions on line 50372.

If you want to revoke, in 2024, an election made in a previous year, enter the month that you want to resume contributing to the CPP on line 50374.

If you did not complete and send Form CPT30 for 2024 when you became employed, you cannot elect to stop paying CPP contributions or revoke an election made in a previous year on your self-employment earnings for 2024 on this schedule.

Election or revocation

If you had self-employment income in 2024, an election or a revocation that begins in 2024 must be made on or before June 15, 2026, to be valid.

I elect to stop contributing to the CPP on my self-employment earnings on the first day of the month entered on line 50372.	50372	Month

Enter the amount from line 39. If you have multiple eligible temporary relocations in the year, add the amount from line 39 for each eligible temporary relocation. Enter this amount on line 11 of page 1. Total labour mobility deduction for the year (maximum $4,000)			41

(1) An eligible temporary relocation expense does not include:

- an expense that you have already deducted from income for any tax year (such as the moving expenses deduction)
- a labour mobility deduction that could have been deducted in a previous year
- an expense that you are or were entitled to receive a reimbursement, allowance, or any other form of assistance for

The total eligible temporary relocation expenses that you can claim, including expenses carried forward from the prior year, is limited to 50% of the employment income from that relocation in the current year. The employment income must be from employment as an eligible tradesperson.

(2) Temporary lodging is an eligible temporary relocation expense if, throughout the period of the taxpayer's temporary relocation, the taxpayer maintains their ordinary residence as their principal place of residence and the ordinary residence remains available for the taxpayer's occupancy and is not rented to any other person.

(3) You can carry forward your unused temporary relocation expenses from line 40 and deduct them from employment income earned at the same temporary work location in the following year. For more information, see Guide T4044, Employment Expenses.

Line 50 minus line 53 (if negative, enter "0") Work-space-in-the-home expenses available to use in future years				= 0 00	55

(4) You must calculate your employment-use amount.

Example of how to calculate your employment-use amount (line 48)

You are a salaried employee who worked from home using your dining room table. The dining room represents 12% of the total square footage of your house and is used for work for 40 hours out of a total 168 hours in the week.

You paid $2,400 for electricity, heat, water and Internet, and $12,000 for rent. You enter $2,400 on line 42, $12,000 on line 46, and $14,400 on line 47.

To determine your employment-use amount, you must first calculate your employment-use percentage as follows:

(40 hours ÷ 168 hours) × 12% = 2.9%

Your employment-use amount is $14,400 from line 47:

($2,400 + $12,000) × 2.9% = $417.60

Enter $417.60 on line 48.
